

Press release: November 2017

SEHTA COO speaking at GIANT Health 2017

RemindMeCare are running a 1-day conference on 'Talking Healthcare – Using voice tech to improve care', as part of the GIANT Health programme on 30 November.

Speakers include Vince Cable, Liberal Democrat leader, who will introduce the Talking Healthcare programme. GIANT Health is a three-day healthcare conference in London featuring 300 speakers, which is taking place at the Old Truman Brewery, in London's East End on 28 – 30 November.

SEHTA is pleased to announce that our COO, Dr Melissa Kapoor, will be speaking at this event about "Electronic reporting and voice-to-text technologies in care settings: a pragmatic feasibility trial".

As you know there's a lot of interest currently in the potential of voice, such as Alexa, in healthcare. RemindMeCare is now working with Alexa and a number of large housing associations and care groups to test the potential of this new medium for improving care. To explore the possibilities and pitfalls, we're holding a conference which will bring together all the those leading the work, including ourselves, for a day of discussion, exploration and debate.

As part of the offer with RemindMeCare we are delighted to offer our members the opportunity to attend this conference Free of Charge. To register please click here
